THE EXHIBITION.

REDUCTION IN THE CHARGE FOR ADMISSION TO OPEN UNTIL HALF-PAST SEVEN AND THE GROUNDS UNTIL NINE P. M. ON SATURDAY-OPENING OF THE BREWERS' BUILDING.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7, 1876. One of the mistakes of the management—I will not call it a blunder, though it may become one-is to charge full price for the admission of children. Fitty or twelve ought to be admitted to the Exhibition for twenty-five cents. There are comparatively few children seen on the grounds, for the obvious reason that parents cannot afford to take their families at the present prices. Yet the young people have a very sincere and patriotic interest in the Centennial, and would, if the rates were reduced, contribute largely to the revenue. This mistake of having no half price for girls and boys is one which should be speedily corcted. The summer holidays are drawing near, and there should be during July and August thousands of elligent school children on the grounds daily. The exclusive policy is not merely unjust, but injurious to the Exhibition. "Large sales and small profits" is as good a motto for the Exhibition as it profor the late Mr. Stewart's dry goods store, and it is to be hoped that the Commissioners will recognize the for the sate Mr. Stewart's dry goods store, and it is to be hoped that the Commissioners will recognize the truth.

There is another point to which the managers will be soon required to give their attention, and that is the stry closing of the grounds. The gates are shut at six s'clock, just at the time when the atternoon is cool and it is pleasant to strolt under the trees. Practically, this rule stops the inspection of the various departments at half-past five P. M., and, of course, deters thousands of people from visiting the grounds. As the days become longer the folly of the premature closing will become more perceptible. It is possible that the exhibitors might be put to a little trouble by the prolongation of the hours of admission, but it is to be remembered they would derive a benefit from the increased attendance. Besides this there are but three or four thousand exhibitors and there will be milions of visitors, and as the latter are expected to make the Centennial successful it seems fair that their powernence and interest should be the first consideradou. In fact there is no reason that I can see why the principal buildings should not be open till ten b'clock at night. The main building can be ighted, and that with perfect safety, and so it is with the Art Gallery. There would be no danger of disturbance from lawless persons. It is to the honor of Philadelphia and the glory of the Exhibition that thus far there has been no disorder and no drunk-nness upon the grounds, and under a good police rule there is no reason to expect any in the evening. Under the present system there are too many hours wasted and too much money lost.

AMUSEMENTS.

ENGLISH OPERA-MISS GENTEUDE CORRETT. "Norms" was repeated hat evening at the Academy of Music with even more decided excess than on the occasion of its first representation. Miss Corbett must be congratualated on the triumph she has achieved in this, her first easily in opera, and she should be encouraged to still greater exertions in the study of her art. Nature has been very bountried to her and she has done much berself to improve those gitts. A little more much berself to improve those gitts. A little more flexibility of voice and evenness of style in sanging such broad phrases as those in flexibility opera might be desirable, but experience will undoubtedly smooth away any slight blemshee that may exist in a naturally beautiful voice. Miss Corbett's acting it deserving of the most unestands praise, and is an agreeable surprise to all who have witnessed it. Rarely in the history of the lyric stage has a debutante created such a decided sensation. Miss Hammer is also posterated on the stage her Adalpta will likely be a praiseworthy effort. Mr. Fritach, with the exception of a slight nervous attack at the commencement of the opera, was very satisfactory, and Mr. Biem's fine busy voice and imposing stage appearance pave dignity to the rôle of Oroveso. The chorus was admirable in all respects, and the stage setting of the opera must be warmly praised. The orchestra was not in good trim last night. Mr. Fiorio, the conductor lacking firmness and decision, those indispensable characteristics of a good leader in opera.

"Humpty Dumpty" still pursues the even tener of his way at the Olympic, to the delight of all his admirers, young and old. Mr. Robert Fraser has proved to be a very satisfactory substitute for poor Fox, and his clownship is a cure for the blues or depression of the spirits. The new features introduced this week in the pantomime are a charming little opera bouge sketch, in which Miles, Deiphine and Julia Pascal, very clever artists, appear; Quilter and Goldrich in songs and dances, one of which, "Peter, You're in Luck This Morning," has become very popular, and a local quartet, by J. R. Thomas, called the "Rose of Killarney," sung by Messrs, Holdsworth, Griffin, Merritt and Lee. The ballid is one of Thomas' happiest efforts, and is encored every night.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES. Wachtel is resting at Wiesbaden after his Americason and will not appear in public until the fall. Miss Gilder has written an original four act comedy

A correspondent from Vicksburg, Miss., wishes to know if the best amateur talent of New York city could do justice to a performance of Mozars's "Magic Flute." We auswer decidedly in the negative. The music of the Queen of Night and of the high priest, Sarastro, would prove too much for any of our local singers.

An opéra boufe season of particular interest to the many admirers of that enticing species of entertainment will be commenced at Booth's Theatre on Monday next, under the united auspices of Aimée and Offenbach. "La Vie Parisienne" will be the initial opera, and will be followed by other popular works of

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be withdrawn at the Park Theatre with the present week. On Monday next Mr. new specialty, "The Kerry Gow." The cast will include Miss May Nunez, from the Fifth Avenue Theatre; Miss Annie Mortimer, Messrs, Padgett, Cogswell, Trevelli, Rosene, Wilks and Brutone. Matinees are

day. The reduced popular summer prices continue.

Offenbach closes his concert season on Friday, and will be succeeded at Gilmore's Garden by Mr. P. S. Gilmore and his famous military band, that has covered itself with glory, both in San Francisco and Philadelphia. It is a band worthy of America, and will favorably compare with some of the most renowned organizations in Europe. An evation to Gilmore may buckle will appear then for the first time this season.

A short time since M. Pasdeloup, of the popular con-certs in Paris, officiated as conductor at a concert in the Grand Theatre, Lyons. As the concluding piece of the programme he had set down Richard Wagner's the programme he had set down Richard Wagner's overture to "Rienzt." On his giving the signal to commence the composition a storm of hisses and groans burst forth from the intelligent French audience. Used to such demonstrations from the equally enlightened Parislans, M. Pasdeloup turned round and said to the sibilant and howling crowd. "Gentlemen, let us be as zealous patriots as it is possible to be, but let us keep politics aloof from the domain of art."

BOXING EXTRAORDINARY.

A unique exhibition of boxing may be witnessed at Harry Hill's Variety Theatre this afternoon. It is pro-Harry Hill's Variety Theatre this afternoon. It is proposed to give a benefit to the "Pioneer Female Boxers," as Misses Rose Harland and Nellie Saunders are called in the bills. Among the names of the sporting men announced to appear for the benefit of the "pioneers" are found those of Joe Coburn, George Rooke, Steve Taylor, John Dwyer, Mike Coburn, Ned Mallahan, and several other well known boxers. The entertainment is to finish with a set-to in "full ring costume" between the "fair beneficiares." The inevitable "Bill" Tovee will act as "Master of Ceremonies."
